

RECORD SWAP

SATURDAY

Swap Records... And Spit!

WHOSE RECORD COLLECTION couldn't use a little revamping... or a little throwing out the window and starting the hell over? Well, it's a perfect time to get your vinyl on at the Night Owl Record Swap. If you need to purge all those Smiths records, you can purchase a table at the event for $12-15.

And if your record collection still consists of Smells Like Teen Spirit and Dirt, you can just show up, grab a Bloody at the Eagle's Lodge bar, and thumb through the selections. Most of the merch will be vinyl, but CDs, tapes, and memorabilia will be scattered throughout. Plus, while not intending to be, this is a great singles' mixer, since you'll get to scope out not only a whole room full of youthful audiophiles, but their telling purchases as well: "Oh, that dude's buying a GWAR record, what a loser!" Or, "That hunk of man-meat is picking up Souls of Mischief, I think I'm in love!" There will also be food for the eating, DJs for the listening and—if you're insane—dancing, and games of pool for couples newly united under the joyful blanket of a shared love of music. Thanks Night Owl Record Swap, for being so many great things rolled into one. KATIE SHIMER

Eagle's Lodge, 4904 SE Hawthorne, 284-4828 for info, Saturday October 4, 5-9 pm, $1 admission

